Tix, also known as Tickets was a currency that was present almost since its launch. Tix didn't cost money, and players could earn by it logging in daily, visiting their Place, and a number of other ways. Tix could also be converted into Robux which is something players used to do a lot. Considering that it was just a free way to earn Robux, people started creating alternate accounts to get more Robux, and it almost entirely killed the point of Robux.

Equally, if you get caught using an account generated through these programs, there are big consequences. The official Roblox site strongly advises against using schemes like account generators. If you're caught doing this, they reserve the right to immediately close your account.

What has made Roblox unique in its field has been the interplay between its enormous constellation of experiences and its personalised avatar system. When you enter any given Roblox world, the user does not assume control of a context-relevant character (think Sonic, Mario, or Lara Croft) but as your persistent, user-created avatar. A virtual You, effectively – whoever you've chosen to be. Add to that an attendant in-game economy which has sprung up to support this expression of identity, with all sorts of user-generated clothing, hairstyles, accessories and skins available to purchase in the platform's avatar shop. Roblox offers an opportunity, then, not just for play, but for digital-first designers and entrepreneurial retailers.
